Fitness and who it suits

Usually very dry, but rain is possible. Average daytime maximum 31 to 33 degrees in April, nights 17 to 21 and sometimes below 10. Some of the optional day walks follow narrow ledges, and thick grass hides rocks, so you watch every step.

Grade: Moderate. Open woodland, rocky and swampy watercourses and spinifex scrub, with short steep climbs and one long, steep descent into Wittenoom Gorge. Without the day walks from base camps it would rate as Hard.

This suits you if

You want gorge after gorge with the pools to yourself
You are happy with a mix of full pack days and base camp days
You like small scale geology as much as the big views

Probably not for you if

You need marked tracks

You want to avoid spinifex

What to bring

Wear

☐ Heavy duty gaiters, because spinifex penetrates long trousers and light gaiters

☐ Long trousers

Carry

☐ One week of food

☐ A fuel stove for the fuel stove only areas

Questions

April or June?

April has more water flowing and it is much warmer for swimming. June is cooler, with the same itinerary.

Is there rock art?

A few minor sites and one or two major ones, mostly on section two. Not as much as Kakadu or the Kimberley.
